
Reference & User Services Quarterly

The Journal of The Reference and User Services Association (RUSA)

Instructions to Authors

SCOPE

Reference & User Services Quarterly (RUSQ) is the official journal of the Reference and User Services Association of the American Library Association. The purpose of RUSQ is to disseminate information of interest to reference librarians, information specialists, and other professionals involved in user-oriented library services. The scope of the journal includes all aspects of library service to adults and reference service and collection development at every level and for all types of libraries.

EDITORIAL POLICY

The journal follows a policy of double-blind refereeing of articles in advance of publication. (Statement adopted by RASD Board, June 27, 1989).

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

Please follow these procedures when preparing manuscripts to be submitted to RUSQ. Manuscripts that fail to comply with RUSQ style may be returned without evaluation.

Submit only original, unpublished articles on subjects within RUSQ's scope. Manuscripts under current consideration for publication elsewhere will not be considered for publication in RUSQ. Manuscripts based on the work of RUSA committees will only be considered for the columns sections of RUSQ. Articles of four thousand to seven thousand words are preferred.

1. Write the article in a grammatically correct, simple, readable style. Remember that the author is responsible for the accuracy of all statements in the article, including the accuracy of references and quotations.
2. Consult the Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, 11th ed., or the Merriam-Webster Online Dictionary (www.merriam-webster.com) for questions relating to spelling and word division.
3. As the authority for punctuation, capitalization, abbreviations, note forms, etc., consult The Chicago Manual of Style (CMOS), 15th ed. (Univ. of Chicago Pr., 2003). CMOS has a companion website (www.chicagomanualofstyle.org).
4. Give the article a brief title; if the title is not descriptive of content, add a brief subtitle. On a separate page give the title, the name(s) of the author(s), and the title and affiliation of each. Manuscripts based on conference presentations should identify the conference by name and date on this page.

5. On a separate page, type the title and subtitle, followed by a brief abstract typed double-spaced. Do not identify the author(s) here or elsewhere in the manuscript.
6. Prepare tables, figures, illustrations, and photographs. Each table should be provided as a separate word processing or MS Excel file. It should be given an Arabic number and a title and cited in the text. Tables, figures, illustrations, and photographs should be numbered in the order in which they are first referenced in the text. Each column in a table should have a heading. Table footnotes and sources, if any, should be typed double-spaced beneath the table.

Each figure should be provided as an individual file, given an Arabic number and a title, and be cited by number in the text. Computer-generated figures should be embedded in Word files or provided as Excel files; Excel files are preferred. Resolution for all figures must be at least three hundred dots per inch.

Screen captures, such as those of websites, must be at high resolution (300 dpi) and formatted for black-and-white or grayscale reproduction. URLs for screen captures must be provided.

When selecting or preparing drawings or photographs, keep in mind that they should be large enough and clear enough to permit a reduction of one-half to one-third.

Avoid referring to tables and figures with phrases such as “the following,” “above,” or “below”; it may be impossible to place the tables or figures to correspond. Refer always to “table 2,” “figure 6,” and so on.

7. RUSQ uses the numbered endnote style described in chapter 16 of CMOS. Endnote numbers should appear in the text as superscripts at the ends of sentences. When more than one item is referenced in a sentence, a single endnote number should be used and the items included in the endnote as in example 13 below. Automatic embedded footnote or embedded endnote features of word processors should not be used. References should be included in a numbered list at the end of the text. Examples of frequently used endnote forms include:

For a book:

1. Jesse H. Shera, Libraries and the Organization of Knowledge (Hamden, Conn.: Archon, 1965), 15.

For part of a book:

2. Richard Anderson, Francis Narin, and Paul McAllister, “Publication Ratings versus Peer Ratings of Universities,” in Key Papers in Information Science, ed. Belver C. Griffith (White Plains, N.Y.: Knowledge Industry, 1980), 125–372.

For an ERIC document:

3. Phyllis MacVicar, A Demonstration of the Interrelating of Library and Basic Education Services for Disadvantaged Adults (Arlington, Va : ERIC Document Reproduction Service, ED 087 401, 1973).

For a journal article:

4. Jessica E. Moyer, “Learning from Leisure Reading: A Study of Adult Public Library Patrons,” Reference & User Services Quarterly 46, no. 4 (Summer 2007): 66–79.
Use “et al.” for citations with four or more authors.

For a report:

5. National Institute of Education, Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education, final report of the Study Group on the Conditions of Excellence in American Higher Education (Washington, D.C.: NIE, 1984).
For an immediate subsequent reference:
6. Ibid., 489.

Wilfrid Lancaster, The Measurement and Evaluation of Library Services (Arlington, Va.: Information Resources Pr., 1991), 239; Shera, Libraries and the Organization of Knowledge, 117.

Other questions on style and preparation of copy can be answered by CMOS. Verify each citation carefully. Spelling and accuracy of names in references should be confirmed by the author.

MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Manuscripts must be submitted in digital format as an e-mail attachment. A paper copy is not necessary. Full contact information, including a mailing address, should be provided. In the case of multiple authors, one author should be designated as contact person.

The manuscript should be prepared using standard word processing software. The preferred word processor is Microsoft Word, but files prepared with most major word processors can be accommodated. No automatic features of the word-processing software—such as autonumbering, footnotes, and headers or footers—should be used.

E-mail attachments: files submitted as attachments should be named to indicate the name(s) of the author and content (text or figures). Send e-mail and attachments to the editor (Diane Zabel, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA) at: dxz2@psu.edu .

EDITORIAL REVIEW

RUSQ employs a double-blind refereeing process, meaning that the author does not know the identity of the reviewer, nor does the reviewer know the identity of the author. Manuscripts submitted to RUSQ are sent to two reviewers for evaluation. The review process generally takes eight weeks.

Referees may recommend that a manuscript be accepted for publication as is, accepted and returned for minor revision not requiring further referee action, returned for major revision requiring additional referee input, not accepted for publication, or referred for possible inclusion as an entry in a column rather than as a feature article. The final decision rests with the editor. Most manuscripts require some author revisions.

EDITING

Articles are edited to improve the effectiveness of communication between author and reader. When extensive editing is necessary, the article will be returned to the author for correction and approval. Authors will receive page proofs of their articles. Questions from the typesetter may require immediate communication with the editor. Drawings and photographs will not always appear in the page proofs. Figures may be recreated to better match RUSQ style.

COPYRIGHT

A copyright agreement form will be sent to each author when the manuscript is accepted for publication. Authors may sign and return either a limited license or full agreement form. RUSQ subscribes to a generous educational use policy. You may deposit your article in an institutional or disciplinary repository subsequent to publication in RUSQ. When posting, the work may not be modified and you must cite the original publication.
